Dancenow Productions, Inc.

Greetings Friends!

What an amazing journey in Edinburgh! But now we are so happy to be back in Mount Rainier! And with some great news on the home front too:

Dancenow Productions, Inc. is now officially a 501(c)3 tax exempt organization!

This means that we are now eligible to receive direct contributions, corporate support, government grants and foundation grant awards.

And what of our trip? It was an amazing 10 days at the Edinburgh Fringe Festival where our performances went very well! We shared a bill with some fabulous artists from all over the country and had one of the finest venues in Edinburgh, thanks to producer Jodi Kaplan: Venue150 at the Edinburgh International Conference Center! Holly was with us and we were able to see lots of performances make some great connections! We do hope to go back to Edinburgh!

As for now, We're back in the studio this week in preparation for our upcoming performance of The Loving Project at Dance Place in October. We're also gearing up to teach the fall 2009 repertory and performance class at Dance Place. Participants of this class will be invited to perform with us in October as we premier our latest work.

Next up, Laura will be performing in Richmond, VA as part of the city-wide retrospective for the late Richard Carlyon. Laura will perform There Then Now/Doin' the Shorty George at the Grace Street Theater on September 26, 2009. Oh, and fellow board member and Laura's dad, Ray Schandelmeier will also be performing...

We look forward to updating you more as the summer rolls to and end and our fall season quickly begins!

Much Love,
Laura & Stephen
